Texas A&M Intramural Sports hires over 200 students each year to fill positions as referees and umpires for our team sports. Officials are needed for flag football, volleyball, soccer, basketball and softball. Training sessions are held in the weeks prior to the beginning of each respective season. Hourly wage rate begins at $9.00/hour and officials are eligible for merit increases in pay after 6 months from initial hire and every semester afterwards.

Officials Orientation Meetings

Intramural sports does not take applications for the officiating position. Please do not fill out the Rec Sports job application! If you are interested in being an intramural official, you MUST attend the orientation meeting for the sport you are interested in officiating.

Job Details

- Intramural officials are the entry level position available in Intramural Sports. All intramural officials must be a student (Blinn College students are eligible to work).
- Officials work approximately 6-12 hours a week; however, some work more or less. Your schedule depends on your availability, and Intramural Sports understands that you are a student FIRST!
- Intramural sports officials may be scheduled Sundays through Thursdays from 5:30pm to midnight. Sometimes Sunday starts as early at 3:30pm and is our most demanding day for staff and requires some availability. While there are no intramural events scheduled for Fridays and Saturdays, intramural officials can also earn extra cash by being available for special events on those days.
- Being an intramural official is seasonal and officials are only required while games are being played. Intramural sports are not played over semester breaks or when school is not in session.
- New intramural officials are not required to know the rules of the sport as those are taught during the training session; however, a basic understanding of the sport is preferred and will assist in getting hired.
• Once hired, intramural officials are required to attend 8-10 hours of training that occur over two weeks before the season starts. This training is paid and must be attended in order to continue working.
• Key qualities of desired staff include a willingness to learn, positive attitude, hustle, ability to accept feedback, and a willingness to improve through the season.
